

The day that passengers are permitted to use cell phones on board, that day I will resign. It is very hard for us flight attendants to get the passengers to comply to FAA rules and regulations; imagine what will happen then if everybody starts talking over the phones. First it will be very noise, others will be trouble with it and will complaint to us, and I think that more crashes will happen. We already experiment radiation around us, why ask for more. Think about us the employee too; up to now everybody seems OK with the use of cell phone after landing.
